With the ever-changing landscape of bike racing, it is my goal to help our local association navigate this challenging course and to improve Colorado racing in general, and for women in particular. With my hands-on connection to the race community, I believe that I can add value and insight to the BRAC board of directors. Since 2016, I have been the Race Director for the Bob Cook Memorial Mt. Evans Hill Climb. This year I added the Triple Bypass, and for 2020, I will add a new criterium, in the Denver Tech Center, to my growing list of events I produce. I love working with the talented crew that supports my events. The expertise of my race officials, crew and volunteers ensure that we produce fantastic and sustainable events. I truly believe that you are only as good as the people you surround yourself with, and I am grateful to have many amazing people in my life.

My experience in the Colorado racing community has helped me grow on a personal level and I am grateful for all of the wonderful people I have met and the experiences we have shared. It inspires me daily, to be amongst such passionate athletes, race officials, medics, photographers and all of those who support our Colorado cycling community. We have something very special and unique in Colorado and I am thankful to be a part of it, and to contribute to the growth and enthusiasm of cycling.
